These listings are in two parts. The first part is an alphabetical listing by name, which may include the spouse's name (or husband, if the named person is a widow), occupation, where the person is employed, and the address where the person lives. Also indicated is whether the person owns the home or simply resides there.

The second part is a listing by street, so one may easily view the neighbors, and may notice how many streets were majority African American. It is listed alphabetically by street, then by house number, and finally, by the person residing (or owning the house) there.
